

UTILITY ADVANCED LINE LOCATOR FIELD TRAINING

Providing knowledge and practical field instruction to prepare Locators for the challenge of conducting accurate and reliable locates.

Who should attend this field training?

Anyone responsible for buried utilities (locators and ground disturbance supervisors) will benefit from the Utility Advanced Line Locator (UALL) field training course. Our training covers electric power, gas distribution, telecommunications/CATV and water & sewer. Training can be customized to meet learners/customer requirements.

Competencies and Learning Objectives

Locating methods and procedures defined in the UFL Manual and the UALL online course are taught and practiced during field training.

Prerequisite

Locate Management's UALL e-learning course is recommended prior to field training instruction. The UALL e-learning, self-paced course (8 hours) was developed by locating industry experts and details the necessary methods and procedures to safely perform locates as per applicable regulatory requirements and industry best practices.

Field Instruction

Field training is conducted at various locations facilities throughout North America. The 2-day (16hrs) field training includes all course materials and instruction.
